

[The text on this page is extremely faint and mostly illegible due to the age and damage of the parchment. It appears to be a dense Latin text, possibly a historical or legal document, written in a cursive hand. Some words like 'Ceterum', 'pro', and 'quod' are barely visible.]

[This column of text is also very faint and illegible, continuing the script from the main body of the document.]

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or letter. The text is written in brown ink on aged, yellowed paper. The script is dense and difficult to decipher due to its cursive nature and the condition of the document. The text appears to be organized into several lines, with some words and phrases being more legible than others. The overall appearance is that of a well-used, historical manuscript.

Consent.

Additional handwritten text or a signature, appearing as a large, flowing cursive script. It is positioned below the main signatures and is partially obscured by the paper's folds and damage.

